

HBA Member Companies that have Trained at Least One Employee for the *EPA's Lead Paint Renovation, Repair and Painting (RRP) Rules:

All contractors that work in pre-1978 housing run the biggest risk of disturbing large amounts of lead paint and creating harmful lead dust. On April 22, 2010, the EPA implemented the Lead Paint Renovation, Repair and Painting (RRP) Rule. This rule requires any contractor that disturbs painted and sealed surfaces in pre-1978 homes to have at least one employee trained as a Certified Lead Renovator. The rule also requires each company to become a Lead-Safe Certified Firm.

Before you sign any contract documents for work to be performed on pre-1978 projects, be sure to ask each contractor to produce the proper credentials for their employees and their firm.

This list below notes all current HBA member companies that have trained at least one employee as a Certified Lead Renovator. Most members have trained their employees through classes at the HBA (conducted by Titan Environmental Services). Some have trained their employees through other means to comply with the EPA's RRP Rule.
